

Autumn-Winter Exposition of Imported Gowns, Suits, Wraps, Waists, and Furs.

THIS Autumn-Winter Exposition of Gowns, Suits, Wraps, Waists, and Furs shows the very latest conception of the season's styles—the final word of the fashion arbiters of Europe and America.

Francis, Worth, Paquin, Drecoll, Robert, Callot Soeurs, Camoreyt, Elise Poret, Crianson

And other noted Parisian Couturieres are seen at their best in this grand assemblage of feminine wearing apparel.

We made a special effort this season to obtain the finest examples of these fashion artists—the result being a display that for variety and beauty has never been approached. No Gown or Wrap too practical to be artistic; none too elaborate to be exquisite; every one from the simplest to the most luxurious breathing refinement in every line. Included in part—

Elegant Day and Evening Gowns, Luxurious Evening and Street Wraps, Magnificent Silk and Irish Lace Waists Charming Creations for Girls, and Rich, Sumptuous Furs.

This matchless assemblage of the correct, the new, the positively authentic in style is the result of months of ceaseless activity, and is teeming with vital, intensely fascinating fashion news of everything of interest in the realm of dress—dress for the ultra-modish woman, the common-sense woman, the woman who wears imported models, the debutante, the dowager. Could any woman imagine a more delightful treat than an hour or so spent in the Real Domain of Fashion?

The Honor of Your Presence Is Requested at This Autumn-Winter Exposition This Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, October 10th, 11th, and 12th.

IN THE SOCIAL WORLD

New Italian Ambassador Arrives in the City.

FAMILY OCCUPIES EMBASSY

The new minister from Sweden, Count Ehrensvard, will arrive next month—Secretary of War and His Party Land in Berlin—Dr. Gerry Morgan and Family Return.

The new Italian Ambassador and Marchesa Confaloniere, with their son and daughter, have arrived at the embassy in this city on their first trip to this country, in the diplomatic circle. They were met in New York by the retiring counselor of the embassy and charge d'affaires, Marchese di Montagliari, who returned here with them. Marchese and Marchesa di Montagliari will sail for Italy later in the month, as the former has been transferred from this post, and is leaving with much regret expressed on all sides, both here and at Manchester-by-the-Sea, where they spent the past summer with their young son. They were prominent in the life of Manchester and made many friends.

The new minister from Sweden to succeed M. de Lagercrantz, recently resigned, has been appointed Count Ehrensvard, Swedish minister to Belgium, who will arrive here in the next month. The former minister and Mme. de Lagercrantz and their two daughters were charming members of the diplomatic colony in Washington during the one year which they spent here. The two young girls were debutantes of that season, and both received much attention and did their share of entertaining in the handsome house of the legation, which is one of the several in upper Sixteenth street built by Mrs. J. B. Henderson. She is maintaining a certain beautiful scheme along this section, just above her own mansion, Boundary Castle, and the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. MacVeagh, the Minister from Denmark and Countess Moltke, and the de Lagercrantz family have occupied them for several seasons. There is still a new one, even more elaborate and roomy than the others, recently completed by Mrs. Henderson.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Beekman Winthrop, accompanied by Miss Marion Oliver, daughter of the Acting Secretary of War, are on a week-end trip to Annapolis and Norfolk, making the trip in one of the government dispatch boats. They will return here tomorrow.

The Secretary of War and Mrs. Dickinson and their party, who have made the trip to the Philippines and around the world since last July, are now in Berlin, at the Hotel Adlon, where they are occupying the royal suite. The party will sail for New York in another week.

The new minister to this country from Norway, Mr. H. H. Bryn, who will succeed the late and very popular Mr. Ovid Gude, will arrive within a few weeks to present his credentials. He has been counselor to the Norwegian Legation in Paris for some time, and comes here from the French capital.

A new Greek minister is also expected this autumn. He succeeded the popular Mr. Coromilas, who was married in the spring to Miss Anna Cockrell, of this city, and who is in his own country on a honeymoon trip of six months. It is expected that he will be promoted to the post of Minister to Vienna or Paris before the expiration of his six months' vacation.

The Comptroller of the Treasury and Mrs. Robert J. Tracewell will leave Washington about October 20 for a month's visit in their home in Indiana. In addition to their stay at Corydon, their former home, they will visit former Senator Hemenway at his home in Indianapolis, and make other visits in Indianapolis, Crawfordville, and Richmond.

Returning travelers from their summer trips are much interested in the announcement of the marriage of Mrs. Lala Griffith Fairfield to Mr. James Cummings Barr, of Boston, which took place on Wednesday, June 1, in the home of the bride's mother at Blufford, N. Y. Cards were issued by the bride's mother, Mrs. Collins McLeod Griffith, in the summer, inclosing announcements that Mr. and Mrs. James Cummings Barr would be at home at 250 Beacon street, Boston. Mrs. Barr is well known in Washington society as Mrs. Walter Fairfield, as she took an active part in the festivities here for many winters, and as a dinner hostess was exceedingly popular. Mr. Barr spent several winters here also, and was a popular bachelor.

Dr. Gerry Morgan and family have returned to the city from their tour abroad and for the winter will be at their Rhode Island avenue home, at their Sixteenth street residence is not ready for occupancy.

Lady Hadfield, sister of Attorney General Wickersham, who has been traveling for some months in the West and Northeast, has taken a cottage at Hot Springs, Va., where she will shortly be joined by Sir Robert Hadfield for the autumn season.

Former Secretary of Commerce and Labor and Mrs. Straus, the former being the present Ambassador to Turkey, arrived in New York on Saturday for a visit to this country and a possible transfer to a more important post in the diplomatic service of this country.

The United States Ambassador to Germany and Mrs. David Jayne Hill entertained at a large and brilliant reception at the embassy in Berlin on Saturday night for the American University men assembled in Berlin for the centenary festivities to be held there.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont, who have spent the summer abroad and have been for a month in Paris, will sail this week for home. Mr. Belmont has made a recent hunting trip in Austria, while Mrs. Belmont awaited him in Paris.

Mrs. Mitchell, wife of Dr. James Mitchell, will return to their home in this city to-day from East Hampton, where she has been visiting since they left Atlantic City.

The Military Attache of the French Embassy and Countess de Chambrun have returned to their home in Washington, the count from Mexico and the countess from Europe. Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, mother of the countess, met them in New York and returned here with them. She will leave to-day for her home in Cincinnati.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fitch Shepard returned yesterday from Hot Springs, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Edson Bradley, who spent the summer and early autumn in their "house," Island home, have returned to their cottage at Tuxedo, where they will remain for some weeks before opening their mansion in Dupont circle.

Mr. and Mrs. John Philip Sousa and Mr. and Mrs. Reginald de Koven and Miss de Koven form a distinguished music coterie at Hot Springs, Va., where they have all recently gone from the seashore in the North.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurence L. Gillespie, who were married in Newport in August and have been traveling in the West since, will return to New York this week and take possession of their new home there, understood to have been one of their many superb wedding gifts. Mr. Gillespie is a son of Gen. and Mrs. Gillespie, of this city, who will entertain him and his bride here during the winter.

Mrs. Lodge, widow of George Cabot Lodge, who is a daughter of Mrs. Charles M. McCawley, is in Boston for a time, before opening her Washington home. She spent the summer with Mrs. Henry Winthrop Gray at Newport.

The marriage of Miss Elvira Dickson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickson, to Lieut. Allan Melvin Pope, U. S. A., will take place on November 23, in the home of the bride in New Orleans. Lieut. Pope is detailed for duty at St. John's Academy, at Manlius, N. Y., where he and his bride will spend the winter.

Mrs. Clark, wife of Representative Champ Clark, is visiting her sister, Mrs. A. H. Filzer, at Colorado Springs. Mrs. Clark has been there since her return from Europe in the summer. She went over as a delegate to the World's Missionary Conference, in Edinburgh. After the conference she traveled extensively in England, Scotland, and on the continent. Mrs. Clark's daughter has returned to Washington.

Rev. E. H. Swem Advises Girls on Marriage Question.

Organizer of Capital Baptist Church Believes in Love-making and Will Leave Washington When It Stops. Sermon Attracts Large Congregation to Typographical Temple.

"Marry when you're young. Don't wait till 'he' earns a fortune, because then you'll never get married," is the advice given Washington women by Rev. E. H. Swem, organizer of the Capital Baptist Church, in his sermon last night on "Should Washington women marry?"

Rev. Mr. Swem's address attracted a large congregation to Typographical Temple Hall. The sermon is the first of a series on the marriage question in Washington, the subjects of the remaining two being: "Why so many Washington women are not married," and "How Washington women can marry."

Not Regarded Sensational.

"This may not seem like a subject that a minister should discuss from the pulpit," said Mr. Swem. "It may be regarded by some as sensational; but better sensation than stagnation. When God married the first man and woman He founded an institution that should be preserved. We should not listen to those who cry out against marriage. These people should be ashamed of their actions, for it betrays the fact that they themselves have made their own married lives unbearable."

"Train your daughters for marriage. Your reception rooms in your own houses are the places for the training. That is where they should meet young men, and that is the place for love-making. I believe in love-making, and when it is stopped I'm going away from Washington."

Fortunes Never Come.

"If you want Washington to be what it should be, do not hinder the marriage institution. Let your daughters marry young. If they wait for the time when 'he' shall have acquired a fortune, they'll wait forever, because 'he' is not going to make a fortune. "By training your daughters for marriage I do not mean to keep them in the kitchen at all times. Cooks are born, not made. But train them in the institution that God has founded, and happiness will be their lot."

PARENT ATTENDS ELOPERS' WEDDING

Cecil Lewis and Miss Pearl Walford United.

Cecil Lewis and Miss Pearl Walford, both well known in Washington's younger set, slipped off to Baltimore Saturday afternoon and were married in the rectory of Ascension Episcopal Church by Rev. Dr. Coupland.

When the young man's father, Herbert Cecil Lewis, editor of the Army and Navy Magazine, learned that his son had gone away with his fiancée, he immediately took a train for the Monument City and arrived at the rectory in time to see "it well done," as he expressed it last night.

Miss Walford and Mr. Lewis had been in each other's company a great deal for the last three years and the news that they had been married did not come as a surprise to their many friends.

The new Mrs. Lewis is the daughter of James M. Walford, of this city and Rockville, who, besides being engaged in many large real estate operations in the District, is an active citizen of Montgomery County.

After the ceremony in Baltimore the bridal couple came to Washington and left last night for the South on a two weeks' trip. On their return Mr. Lewis will become assistant editor of his father's publication.

STYLE SHOW PLANNED.

Merchant Tailors Will Meet Here Next February.

Owen Owen, president, announces that the National Association of Merchant Tailors of America will hold a convention and national style show in February.

This was decided upon at a meeting of the executive committee of the organization in New York City. The National Association of Merchant Tailors of America is one of the most flourishing trade bodies in the country. It is made up of all the leading custom tailors in the United States. Owen Owen, of this city, its national president, assumed that office at the convention held last year at the Hotel Astor, New York City. Washington has a branch of this association, of which George Hebbard is president.

The national style show for 1911, to be held in connection with the convention, will be one of the best exhibitions of men's and women's apparel that has ever been had in this country.

PREACHES ON SALVATION.

Rev. E. J. Lukens Conducts Services at Bethany Chapel.

Rev. Francis J. Lukens, superintendent of the Central Union Mission, conducted the services at Bethany Chapel last night in the absence of Rev. Zed H. Copp, who preached at the mission.

Taking as his text, "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved," he pointed out the significant points regarding salvation. Beginning with the question, "What is salvation?" Rev. Mr. Lukens demonstrated its fundamental truths, explaining how Christ gave up His life that the sins of the world might be redeemed. He next touched on "how to get salvation, and what to do with it after you get it."

Salvation, he explained, could not be obtained for the mere asking; like everything else in life, it had to be fought for; something had to be sacrificed for. To throw away your salvation after once you had received it, he said, was to sin against God, and he urged his listeners to hold dear above all things that which would bring them lasting salvation and happiness in the redemption of their souls.

THE "Universal" Coffee Machine excels all other ways of making coffee because the percolation is completed before the water boils.

Used at the table. It begins to operate as soon as its lamp is lighted.

While the water is heating, it is continually pumped up over the ground coffee in the top, percolating down into the pot again.

Coffee made in it is easily known by its delicious aroma, fine flavor, and the absence of the bitter taste caused by boiling.

If you want to know what Perfect Coffee is like, try the "Universal."

MRS. MAUD BOOTH TALKS ON PRISONS

Church People Hear Wife of Gen. Booth's Son.

Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth, daughter-in-law of Gen. Booth, the founder of the Salvation Army, told of her work among the men in State prisons, and asked for assistance, in a lecture at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church last night.

Mrs. Booth described the homes which the Volunteer Prison League of America has established in New York, Illinois, and Ohio. She said there was as much exclusiveness about the homes as there was about any high social club, as no one could enter one of the homes unless he had served at least one year in prison. She told many interesting stories of the conversion of prisoners and the good lives which they lived in preparation for the hard struggle to make an honest living when their terms should be up. She said the reform was not only on the surface, but it was deep in the soul of the man himself, and the greatest help to other prisoners to try and become honest men was to have a hard criminal make a good record.

Mrs. Booth left last night for Hope Hall, one of the homes for ex-convicts, in New York.

ADmits THREE MEMBERS.

Monumental Lodge, No. 45, Independent Order B'nai Abraham, initiated three candidates at its regular meeting held at Pythian Temple last night.

District Deputy Max Perskin was present and made an address on the work of the order in the District. Arrangements were perfected for an entertainment to be given early in November for the members and their friends.

TO-DAY IN HISTORY.

Naval Academy at Annapolis Opened—Oct. 10.

The United States Naval Academy was founded by George Bancroft, Secretary of the Navy during the administration of James K. Polk. It was at first called the Naval School. For several years prior to Mr. Bancroft's effort, in 1845, there was a school working along similar lines at the naval asylum in Philadelphia, where the midshipmen prepared themselves for examination for promotion.

The Naval School was formally opened at Annapolis on October 10, 1845, in Fort Severn, which had been transferred by the War Department for the purpose. The course was fixed at five years, of which the first and last only were to be passed at the school and the intervening three at sea.

The first midshipmen that received a course of instruction and graduated from the school were those who entered the service in 1840. In 1850 the school was reorganized, the name was changed to the United States Naval Academy, the course was increased to seven years, the first two and last two years to be passed at the school, the intervening three at sea. At this time the separate departments of instruction were established, a vessel was provided, and annual practice cruises were instituted. In 1851 the requirement of sea service was abolished, leaving the course four consecutive years of study. At the outbreak of the civil war in 1861 the Naval Academy was removed to Newport, R. I., where it remained until the summer of 1865, when it was re-established at Annapolis. In 1870 the title of cadet-midshipman was substituted for that of midshipman, and three years later the course was increased by the addition of two years' sea service in cruising vessels, at the expiration of which the cadet-midshipman returned to the Naval Academy for examination in professional subjects prior to final graduation.

Originally one naval cadet was allowed for each member and delegate of the House of Representatives, and by appointment of the President, one for the District of Columbia and ten for the country at large. In 1860 the number of cadets at the academy was increased by an act authorizing appointments to the Academy every four years instead of six.

The number of officers in service subsequent to the Spanish-American war was wholly inadequate to the increasing demands of the fleet, and as the only means of adding to the number is through the Naval Academy, an increase in the number of cadets was proposed. This increase, made by Congress in 1902, provided for the appointment of a cadet every two years by each Senator, Congressman, and Delegate in Congress, and eleven by the President.

There are schools similar to our Naval Academy all over the world. The naval school of the British government is located at Dartmouth on board the old line-of-battle ships, though academic buildings were recently completed and occupied. The German naval academy is located at Kiel. The training of officers and men in the French navy has undergone considerable change of late. The principal naval schools are the Polytechnic at Brest, with separate schools for engineers and the medical departments. The naval school of Denmark is located at Copenhagen; of Turkey, at Kasimpasha and on the island of Halki; of Sweden, at Stockholm. The principal source of supply of officers for the Russian navy is the naval academy at St. Petersburg, and there is also a school of navigation and ordnance at Kronstadt. The Japanese naval officers are educated mostly at the academy of Kure, and the Italian naval school at Leghorn.

Besides the Naval Academy at Annapolis, there is a Naval War College at Newport, R. I., which performs the double function of preparing plans of naval operations and instructing officers in special lines, and also one in this city. The torpedo school for both officers and men is located at the torpedo station on Goat Island, Newport Harbor. The principal training station for enlisted men is the one for apprentices at Newport; but there are others at Port Royal, S. C., San Francisco, and other points. Gun captains are trained on the gunnery training ships, which usually have headquarters at Port Royal.

To-day is the birthday of John, Duke of Argyll, statesman and commander (1686); Benjamin West, the American artist (1738); Hezekiah Niles, founder of "Niles' Register" (1777); George P. Morris, the American poet (1802); William J. Hardee, whose "Hardee's Tactics" are the standard in the army (1815); Samuel J. Randall, eminent Democratic statesman (1829); Queen Isabel II of Spain (1830); Edna Dean Proctor, poet (1838); and Fridtjof Nansen, the Norwegian Arctic explorer (1861). To-day is the date of the death of Pulaski, the Polish patriot (1779).

WORKMAN'S CIRCLE MEETS.

Decides to Establish New Cemetery for Pauper Jews.

Branch No. 52, of the Workman's Circle, admitted several new members to the order at its regular meeting held at Pythian Temple last night.

L. Katzman acted as chairman of the session, and the question of public lectures brought out a general discussion, in which N. Demson, I. Rosenblatt, and Isadore Bernstein took an important part.

It was decided to make the purchase of suitable grounds for cemetery purposes for the Jewish people who die without sufficient funds to afford a proper burial place. This is a part of the benevolent work of the order.

The handed-in effects are even seen in coats.
